Team APG restores commitment to Army profession at “Why We Serve” event

by Marissa Anderson, CECOM Public Affairs

ABERDEEN PROVING GROUND, Maryland - - With right hands raised in unison, more than 750 Soldiers, civilians, Veterans, family members and distinguished guests participated and witnessed a reaffirming of solemn oath's of service at the Team APG “Why We Serve” event here at the Myer Auditorium at the C4ISR campus Nov. 25.

Maj. Gen. Bruce T. Crawford, Commanding General of the Communications-Electronics Command (CECOM) and APG Senior Mission Commander, served as the host and keynote speaker for the event.

“Today is about reflecting, examining and reaffirming who we are and what we stand for as trusted professionals,” said Crawford.

“Today is about introspection. Today is about accountability. And as professionals, since we are in the people business, today is ultimately about you ... Being here today allows us to pause and reflect on who we are because that is what professionals do.”

The theme “Restoring our Commitment to the Profession” reflected Crawford’s vision for the event that included all Soldiers and
